DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 1-3 are objected for failing to clearly identify that which the applicant regards as the invention. The term "a first circuit board" (e.g., claim 1, ll. 8) in claims 1 and 2 is not clear because prior in the claim "a circuit board" (e.g., claim 1, ll. 4) is claimed. Are these the same or a different circuit board? Claim 3 is objected to because it inherits the deficiencies of claims 1 and 2.

Claims 1 and 3 are objected for failing to clearly identify that which the applicant regards as the invention. The term "fitting of which is compulsory" a first circuit board" (e.g., claim 1, ll. 8-9) in claim 1 is not clear as to what this comprises. Claim 3 is objected to because it inherits the deficiencies of claims 2.

Claims 2 and 3 are objected for failing to clearly identify that which the applicant regards as the invention. The term "is selectively as the circuit board" in claim 2 is not clear as to what this comprises. Claim 3 is objected to because it inherits the deficiencies of claims 2.

In short, claims 1-3 are unclear almost to the level of being indeterminate. Appropriate action is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ha et al. (JP 2003-029649). Ha et al. (JP 2003-029649), herein after referred to as "Ha," teaches a liquid crystal display device comprising: a flat box-shaped cabinet (200) having a display member at a front side thereof and an opening at a back side thereof; a circuit board (e.g., 276) that is fitted to the cabinet (e.g, 300) or a member accommodated inside the cabinet; and a shield cover (700) capable of covering the opening of the cabinet after the circuit board is fitted, wherein either a first circuit board (400) or a second circuit board (500), a former is smaller than a latter, is selectively fitted as the circuit board, and inside the cabinet (300), there is provided a hook (e.g., left side of drawing 6) that is capable of attaching a small shield (e.g. 810) covering first circuit board, and, when the second circuit board is fitted, capable of locking the second circuit board in place. (See e.g., paragraphs 54-87 and Figs. 6-10)

It is noted that functional language in a product claim is only given patentable weight to the degree that the structure is capable of performing a given function.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The references on the attached PTO-892 teach related LCD housing inventions.
